Mrs. Kiran Agarwal

Founder, WOKA – World of Kiran Agarwal
United Kingdom

Mrs. Kiran Agarwal

Kiran Agarwal's life is a tapestry woven with culture, compassion, and creativity. Born in the quiet town of Sangaria in Rajasthan, and educated in the historically rich city of Patna—in Pataliputra, her early life was shaped by the echoes of India's ancient glory. Bihar, the land of Bodh Gaya where Buddha attained enlightenment, and home to the legendary Nalanda University, infused her worldview with deep cultural and spiritual roots.

An all-rounder from the start, Kiran was not just academically inclined but deeply engaged in sports, representing her city in badminton, table tennis, and carrom. Her passion for music and poetry found equal expression in her early years, eventually blooming into a lifelong pursuit of writing. A formal course in creative writing at the prestigious London School of Journalism marked a turning point—what was once a passion became a calling.

Marriage brought her to Mumbai, and later to London, alongside her husband Anil Agarwal—a close family friend and a like-minded partner in life's purpose. Together, they built a life rooted in values of service and giving back. As their family grew with children, Agnivesh and Priya, son in law Akarsh, granddaughter Mahii in who Kiran found a new muse —her role as a 'Nani.'

It was through storytelling to her granddaughter that the seeds of WOKA – World of Kiran Agarwal were sown. Like grandmothers of yesteryear who passed down wisdom through tales, she saw storytelling as a way to bridge generations. But she envisioned something larger: a world where every child, regardless of background, could feel nurtured, entertained, and morally anchored.

Inspired by the principle of Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam—the world is one family—Kiran created WOKA to help children reconnect with their roots in an age of screens, distractions, and shrinking family units. She began with short stories infused with Indian values, and over time, these evolved into beautiful animated films filled with music, color, and characters that captivated young hearts.

WOKA grew into a multi-dimensional platform, offering books on culture, sanskar, and rituals from India's 26 states—a cultural encyclopedia for modern parents. From prayer guides and shlokas for daily recitation, to books that explore festivals and rites of passage, Kiran's vision has always been about preserving the essence of Indian identity in a modern world.

Her husband's philosophy—"Life is not just about me, mine, and myself"—became a guiding light. The charitable ethos behind Vedanta's Nandghar initiative resonated deeply with WOKA's mission: to raise a generation of children who are respectful, fearless, rooted, and morally strong.

In just 6 months, WOKA has touched over 10 million lives. Today, WOKA is a one-roof platform combining clean and enriching entertainment: live music, karaoke, TV, games, audiobooks, and even beloved outdoor classics like gilli danda and pithu. Parents and children a chance to bond—not through consumption, but through shared experiences.

What began 10 years ago as "Nani ki Kahaniyan" is now a global movement. And at its heart is one woman's dream: to bring saaf aur safe manoranjan—clean, safe entertainment—to the children of the world.

Major Munish Chauhan

Surgeon - British Army
United Kingdom

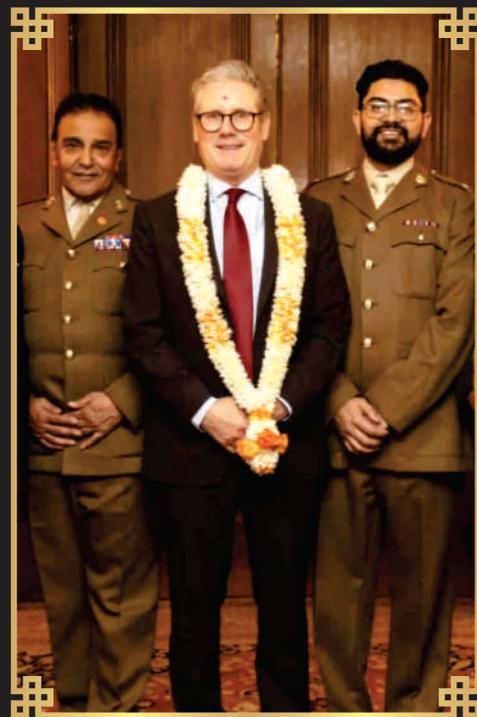

Major Munish Chauhan

Major Munish Chauhan MBBS, MRCS, DMCC, PGDip, RAMS is an award-winning General Surgery Registrar in the British Army, the only Indian-born surgeon currently serving in the UK Armed Forces. He is also a Senior Research Fellow at the Centre for Army Leadership and an Executive Coach committed to nurturing self-aware, resilient leaders who lead with purpose and compassion.

His leadership and service have earned widespread recognition. Munish is a recipient of the CGS Commendation in the British Army's 2025 New Year's Honours, the Dr B.R. Ambedkar Achievement Award, the Leadership Beyond Borders Award presented by a Government Minister of India, the Extra Ordinary Achievers Charity Award, and the Clinical Excellence Award from the NHS. He holds a rare Fellowship in Leadership from the British Army—a distinction awarded to only a few. But behind every award lies a story of struggle, strength, and service.

Born into poverty in a small Indian village, Munish's childhood was marked by financial hardship. He worked as a child labourer, often barefoot and without a school uniform, yet he never lost sight of a better future. At just 17, he moved to the UK alone, with little more than a dream and a student loan. He endured homelessness, hunger, and deep self-doubt. At one point, he was told by a senior officer that he wasn't "academically robust enough" to become even a nurse in the Army. He proved every doubter wrong.

Today, Munish blends surgical precision with leadership grounded in emotional intelligence and psychological safety. At the Centre for Army Leadership, he presents his work on resilience, self-leadership, and metacognition—research shaped as much by life experience as by academic rigour. His coaching approach is deeply reflective, focused on unlocking the potential in others through self-awareness and mental agility.

A passionate advocate for remembrance, Munish led a 100km team march—3.5 million steps—to honour Commonwealth soldiers. Currently, he is taking on a 1,000km challenge: 50 half-marathons while carrying a 15kg bergen, raising awareness of the British Indian Army's contributions in the world wars. For him, these are not just endurance feats—they are acts of service and storytelling, ensuring forgotten voices are heard.

His community work speaks volumes of his character. Every Christmas, Munish and his friends serve over 200 homeless people on the streets of London, giving not just food, but dignity and warmth. For him, leadership means stepping up—when it's tough, when no one's watching, and always with heart.

Munish Chauhan's journey is not simply one of achievement—it is a living example of courage, compassion, and commitment. From rural India to the halls of the House of Lords, from a park bench to the operating theatre, he continues to rise—lifting others with him.

He is not just a surgeon or a soldier. He is a servant-leader, proving that greatness begins with grit, and true honour lies in humble service.

Mr. Vishnu Appadu

From humble beginnings in Mauritius to becoming a respected entrepreneur and global thought leader in the UK, Vishnu Appadu's story is one of resilience, purpose, and service. His path blends spiritual depth with enterprise, creating a legacy rooted in compassion, education, and empowerment.

Born into the culturally rich Appadu family, whose spiritual roots trace back to India, Vishnu was deeply influenced by Indian philosophy and dharma. His father, Pandit Sattiadev Appadu, a priest and teacher, and his mother, Umah Appadu, a homemaker, instilled in him the values of discipline, compassion, and service. Weekly pujas at the family temple shaped his early spiritual awareness.

At the age of 17, Vishnu joined the Brahma Kumaris World Spiritual University, where he began his lifelong journey in meditation, self-realization, and service. This spiritual foundation continues to guide every step of his professional and personal life.

A brilliant academic, Vishnu attended the prestigious John Kennedy College in Mauritius, excelling in Physics, Mathematics, Music, and Computer Science. He later earned a BSc in Physics before moving to the UK to pursue his MSc in Computer Science. Even as a student, he worked tirelessly in the care sector, supporting the elderly and vulnerable — an experience that ignited a new sense of purpose.

Entrepreneurial from a young age, Vishnu founded his first company, Prestige Ltd., at 18, offering affordable computer systems and free IT tuition to the local community. His early ventures reflected a rare combination of technical skill and social responsibility.

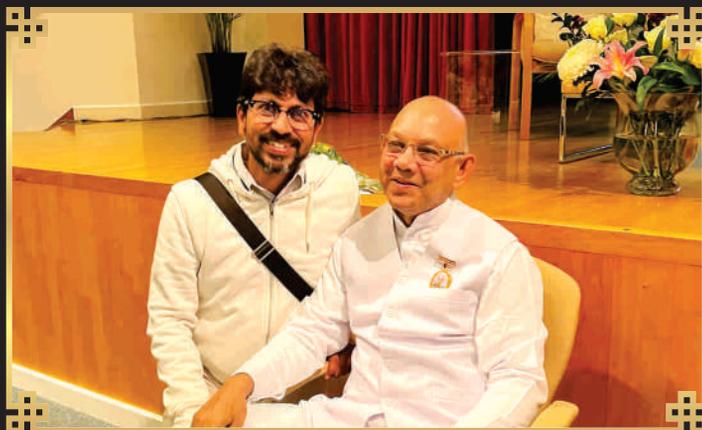

In 2017, he founded Care Trainings – a leading UK-based institute offering apprenticeships and professional development in Health & Social Care, Hospitality, and Management. The organisation has empowered thousands of learners, especially from underprivileged backgrounds, to gain skills, confidence, and meaningful careers. But for Vishnu, success is not measured by qualifications alone. His leadership is rooted in Indian values – humility, mindfulness, respect for all beings – which he actively integrates into modern care systems.

Concerned about burnout and emotional fatigue among care workers, Vishnu launched initiatives offering free meditation sessions in care settings. His belief in the healing power of Indian spirituality has positioned him as a pioneer in merging ancient wisdom with modern healthcare.

Vishnu is also an advisor to the Janki Foundation, a UK-based charity promoting spirituality in healthcare. He supports projects like the Global Hospital in Rajasthan through both training and financial aid. His work spans continents, with ongoing contributions across Africa, Europe, and India. As a founding member of the Values-Based Club during his university days, he remains committed to promoting ethics and values in education.

In 2025, Vishnu was honoured with the Global Leader and Business Award in recognition of his outstanding contribution to human wellbeing. Under his guidance, Care Trainings has grown into a beacon of values-based, purpose-driven education.

Beyond his professional achievements, Vishnu's impact as a father and role model is equally profound. He ensures that his family remains connected to their Indian heritage. His children, Darlena and Shaye Appadu, study at Avanti Secondary School — a UK-based values-driven institution with a curriculum focused on ethics, philosophy, Sanskrit, and meditation.

At present, Vishnu is wholeheartedly committed to nurturing the next generation of Indians in the UK — both professionally and spiritually. He empowers young individuals to discover their unique talents, while instilling in them the values of self-awareness, service, and purposeful leadership. For Vishnu, true success lies not only in career advancement, but in living with integrity and inner strength. Through mentoring, community engagement, and spiritual guidance, he is cultivating a new wave of leaders who honour their heritage, uplift others, and lead with both wisdom and compassion.

As Vishnu himself believes:

“In a world that moves fast, it is our roots that keep us grounded.”

His legacy continues to grow — not just in education and enterprise, but in inspiring a generation to lead with heart, honour tradition, and create a better world through values and vision.

Mr. Madhav Agasti

Dress Designer
India

Mr. Madhav Agasti

Madhav Agasti, a legendary men's dress designer based in Mumbai, has spent more than five decades tailoring not just clothes, but the very image of power and charisma in Indian public life. At 76, Agasti's legacy is stitched into the fabric of both Bollywood and Indian politics, where his bespoke creations have adorned some of the most influential personalities in the country.

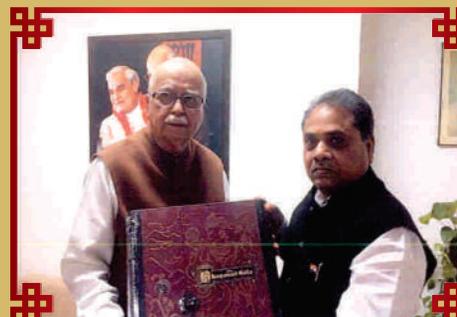

Agasti's journey is nothing short of extraordinary. With no formal training in tailoring or fashion design, he entered the world of costume-making driven purely by passion and perseverance. His story is a testament to the power of self-belief and the value of hands-on learning. What began as humble beginnings in the city of dreams, Mumbai, blossomed into a remarkable career that saw him design costumes for over 350 Hindi films. Over the years, his clientele expanded to include Indian Prime Ministers, Deputy Prime Ministers, Presidents, Governors, Chief Ministers from various states, senior leaders across political parties, and notable international figures.

One of the defining chapters of Agasti's illustrious career began in the heart of Bollywood. Though he designed costumes across genres, he became especially known for his work with villains—crafting looks that were as memorable as the characters themselves. Among his most iconic works is the costume of Mogambo, the infamous antagonist from the 1987 blockbuster Mr. India, portrayed by the late Amrish Puri. The costume, with its military flair and menacing style, became an iconic symbol of villainy in Indian cinema.

While Agasti made his name in the world of cinema, his work soon caught the attention of political leaders. His transition from Bollywood to politics was seamless, and his understanding of personality and presence made him a favorite among politicians who wanted their attire to reflect authority and identity. His most celebrated political client was Shiv Sena founder late Balasaheb Thackeray. Agasti designed Thackeray's signature white shirt-style kurta and the elegant Kashmiri shawl that became synonymous with the leader's public persona. The attire was not just clothing; it was a carefully constructed image that embodied simplicity, strength, and cultural pride.

Agasti's designs were never about following fashion trends. Instead, they were about understanding the essence of a person and creating garments that highlighted their individuality. He approached each project like a storyteller, using fabric and form to express a narrative. Whether it was a commanding politician or a formidable film villain, Agasti had a unique ability to translate character into clothing. Behind the glamour and acclaim, however, was a journey of grit and resilience. Agasti started with little more than a dream and an unwavering belief in his craft. He worked tirelessly to establish his business, facing many challenges that come with working in a highly competitive industry. But with every stitch, he refined his skill and built a reputation as a meticulous and insightful designer. His dedication to quality and his ability to adapt to changing times have been key to his long-standing success.

Agasti believes that the key to a fulfilling life is to follow one's passion with perseverance. In his own words, "When passion is paired with perseverance, it can transform dreams into reality." His story is not just about fashion—it's about human connection, adaptability, and the power of purpose. Throughout his career, Madhav Agasti has remained grounded and grateful. He often speaks of the people who supported him along the way—clients, colleagues, and friends who believed in him and gave him opportunities to grow. He sees his journey as a collaborative one, shaped by countless interactions and shared experiences.

His upcoming memoir delves into the personal and professional milestones that have defined his career, offering readers an intimate look into the world of Indian tailoring and design. It's more than a recounting of achievements—it's a heartfelt narrative of struggle, growth, and the timeless art of dressing men with dignity and distinction. Madhav Agasti's legacy lies not just in the clothes he has crafted, but in the impact he has had on Indian visual culture. From the silver screen to the corridors of power, his designs have helped shape how India's most iconic figures are seen and remembered. Through skill, intuition, and an unshakable love for his craft, he has earned his place as one of India's most revered and influential designers.

At just six years old, Dheer Parasramka embarked on a journey that would soon captivate hearts across the globe. What began in April 2023 with a local record has since evolved into an extraordinary tale of discipline, movement, and world recognition—fueled by fluttering flags and spinning cartwheels.

Dheer's journey officially began when he entered the Assam Book of Records, earning his first state record at an age when most children are still discovering their interests. It was more than just a milestone; it was the spark that ignited a deeper passion for performance and personal excellence. From that moment forward, Dheer was unstoppable.

Fascinated by the rhythm and expression of flag performances and acrobatics, he honed a rare combination of skills that required both strength and grace. With boundless energy, he dedicated hours to mastering the art of flag-wielding while incorporating seamless, high-speed cartwheels—a signature style that soon became his identity.

His talent quickly gained national and international attention. In less than a year, Dheer made his mark across multiple global platforms, securing entries in not one, but five major world record authorities : World Record Certification, Record Setter, International Book of Records, Exclusive Book of Records, Kings Book of World Records.

These recognitions were not just about numbers—they were acknowledgments of an extraordinary young talent who had turned movement into a message of passion, determination, and creativity.

In April 2024, Dheer achieved yet another phenomenal feat: 50 cartwheels in one minute, a staggering display of endurance, coordination, and control. This performance earned him the title of “Multiple World Record Holder”, further cementing his place as one of the most remarkable young performers of his generation.

Despite the fame and accolades, Dheer remains grounded in his love for what he does. His performances are not just physical accomplishments—they are visual poetry, reflecting discipline and joy. Vaayu Parasramka

The Youngest Flag Prodigy
India

Vaayu Parasramka

In the vibrant world of country flags, where color, history, and symbolism meet, Vaayu Parasramka has already left an indelible mark—long before most children learn their alphabets. At just three years old, Vaayu followed in the footsteps of his older brother, Dheer Parasramka, stepping into a legacy of excellence, focus, and national pride.

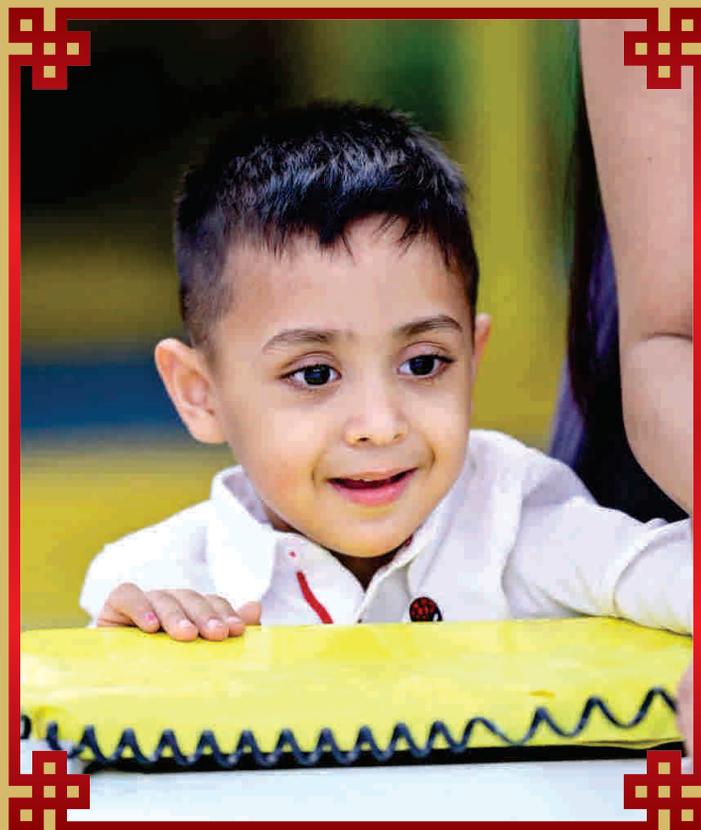

The year 2023 marked the beginning of Vaayu's inspiring journey when he achieved a state record in the Assam Book of Records, becoming one of the youngest ever to do so in the flag recognition category.

Inspired by watching his elder brother's performances and passion for flags, Vaayu began developing a keen interest in world flags himself—absorbing country names, colors, and designs with astonishing speed.

But what sets Vaayu apart isn't just his ability to recognize flags—it's the sheer scale and depth of his achievements at such a tender age. In 2024, Vaayu went on to earn a world record under the Exclusive World Records title for being the youngest child to identify 100 country flags.

This recognition did more than just set a new record; it demonstrated the power of early learning, encouragement, and passion passed down through family inspiration.

What made his achievement even more special was the love and admiration he shared with his brother, Dheer. Rather than competition, their story is one of legacy and mutual celebration—a beautiful journey of two brothers, each creating history while lifting the other up.

Then came the defining moment: on April 6th, 2024, Vaayu surpassed even his brother's milestone by identifying all 195 country flags correctly, earning a new world record under the International Book of Records. This remarkable feat made him the youngest child to achieve full global flag identification, breaking the record in the age category once held by his own sibling.

What makes Vaayu's journey particularly inspiring is not only his talent, but his enthusiasm, curiosity, and the joy he finds in learning. His ability to memorize and associate each flag with its country speaks to a unique intelligence nurtured by encouragement and an environment of excellence.

Today, Vaayu stands as a symbol of how greatness knows no age. His achievements have made headlines, but it's his humble spirit and unwavering curiosity that make him a true inspiration. Whether it's identifying the tricolor of India, the stripes of the United States, or the maple leaf of Canada, Vaayu does it with a spark in his eyes and a heart full of wonder.

In a family where dreams take flight with flags and cartwheels, Vaayu Parasramka is the youngest star to rise—proving that legacies aren't just inherited, they're honored and evolved. With every flag he names, he's not just making history—he's building a future where learning is limitless.

Ms. Gulabo Sapera

Padma Shri
Folk Dance Artist
India

Ms. Gulabo Sapera

A legendary folk artist, Gulabo not only got the flamboyant dance style "Kalbeliya", conceptualized and choreographed by herself, identified across the globe but got her community, a nomadic one, a never imagined recognition. Battling all the odds that life thrust upon her she proceeded with courage and perseverance for the honour of the nation, her community and her family. The dance form, she introduced, is today one of the major features the state of Rajasthan is identified with on culture and tourism map.

Born in kalbeliya tribe in Ajmer as dhanvanti, her parents buried her on pressure from the community despite their unwillingness due to her being 4th girl child but she was lucky to be exhumed alive after almost six hours on the insistence of her mother's sister. Her father started taking her along in a very tender age for the snake show on the roads, their staple profession and growing up with the snakes, she started dancing like the snakes. A style, which was quite a unique and unprecedented one.

Given her rather maniacal passion for the dance, she continued practicing surreptitiously in the isolated places despite the objections of her community.

Once she was taken to the holy shrine of khwaza moinuddin chishti, where the shrine blessed her with a rose flower and here she got the new name "GULABO".

The turning point of her life came when she was dancing with her community women in a fair at Pushkar at the age of seven yrs in 1981. There she was noticed by some representatives of tourism department, who were quite enthralled by the gyrations and suppleness of her dance. There she was offered to dance before a group of foreigners, which she did after a rigorous convincing and won enormous appreciation. This public performance further enraged her community and this time the infuriated community panchayat slapped her family with social boycott. Unable to beat this resistance, she finally shifted to Jaipur with the help of her family and her promoters.

In 1985, she got an offer to join a culture crew for the USA, which again was opposed heavily, but overcoming this opposition, she finally left for the USA with her father passing away just a day ahead of her departure to the USA. But for the realization of the dreams of her father and her family and for the recognition of her community and art, she flew to the USA and remained in washington for two months performing continuously.

Impressed by the dance form, she had an offer to live there permanently and teach the dance but she refused. The intervention of the then prime minister, Rajiv gandhi, on whose wrist she tied a symbolic rakhi, could not budge her and he had to give in to her patriotic sentiments and interest in teaching the art in her own country.

Since then, she tied the holy thread on his wrist every raksha bandhan until he passes away. With this her relation with the Gandhi family became eternal.

This overseas performance in the US established her as an ambassador of the folk heritage of Rajasthan. President of the all India kalbeliya community, today she is treated as an institution, a hallmark of the state with a plethora of national and international awards. A visiting faculty at institutions in countries like Denmark (Copenhagen), France (Paris).

She has visited 153 countries. She wishes to set up a dance school in Pushkar, amidst the people of her own community. She has also taken up the course of educating the girls and boys of her community and working tirelessly for the image makeover of the community through the GULABI SAPERA SANGEET SANSTHAN, set up by her.

In 2011, GULABO featured in reality television show BIGG BOSS 5 as contestant No. 12. She spoke openly about the truth in 2016.

She got Padma Shri award from President of India.

Dr. Bindeshwar Pathak - Padma Bhushan, Sulabh International

"Sulabh had its genesis in my resolve to free the country from the dual scourge of untouchability and open defecation. While one scarred the conscience of an otherwise great civilization we are, the other played havoc with the health and hygiene of its citizenry. My invention of a two-pit, ecological, toilet system, a veritable mass technology, knocked the bottom out of the civilizational problems of our times. The pay-toilets infrastructure that I established gave the country, India an order of public hygiene. And the result is that by even a conservative estimate, the technology now touches the lives of 10% of humanity on the planet besides having liberated millions from their caste-imposed, abominable work. I drew my drive and verve to accomplish my lifelong mission from Gandhiji and am carrying forward full-steam the agenda."

Mr. Manoj Kumar - Padma Shri, Indian Actor & Film Director in Hindi Cinema
